MOBILE PROCESSING UNIT

No longer do you have to truck your livestock to processing facilities far away. Now small producers like you can process your livestock where and when you want with a TriVan Mobile Meat Processing Unit!

What began as a project in 2002 to help a Farmers Cooperative in San Juan County achieve its goal to process all its livestock, resulted in the first USDA approved Mobile Processing Unit. Since then it has grown into a wide product offering by TriVan Truck Body that is helping farmers all over North America.

TriVan Truck Body trailers process reindeer in Alaska, beef and poultry in Canada, buffalo in South Dakota, and many others in between. Our Mobile Processing Units are capable of daily, heavy use in extreme weather conditions.

We have standard designs to choose from, and can custom build any Mobile Processing Unit configuration you need to suit your unique market needs that result in sustainable local food supply.

We at TriVan Truck Body invite you to come and see for yourself the quality and workmanship on display at our 40,000 square foot plant in Ferndale, Washington.

Call or email today for information and a quotation on a Mobile Processing Unit or other trailers.
